Care of Septic Tanks Important

How suburban and rural homeowners care for their septic tanks may spell the difference between health and disease.

Most counties and cities have local ordinances regulating sewage disposal, and these ordinances should be consulted before any disposal system is constructed. A septic tank permit from the local health department is required before the tanks can be constructed.

As for general care of septic tanks:

See that the area around the drain field is well drained.

If the land is high and well drained, grade it to eliminate low areas which will collect water in extremely wet weather. Water allowed to stand over the drain field will seep into the drain tile and fill up the entire system.

Keep area over drain field clear of trees and shrubbery. The roots of willow, cottonwood, dogwood, gum, or elm trees can cause damage to sewer lines.

Clean home systems at least once every three to five years.

Use bleach solutions, lye, etc., sparingly.

Do not make alterations to the system without first consulting your health department.

Do not allow heavy machinery to run over the system because it may break the tile or the septic tank.

Do not make a driveway over the drain field or cover any part of it with a building, as this will pack the ground and impair the efficiency of the system.

Corn Silage More Profitable Than Sorghum in Feeding Tests

A two-year study in Mississippi showed that corn silage is a more economical feed for milk production than sorghum silage.

In 1954-55, corn yielding six tons per acre at a cost of $7.00 per ton returned very slightly more income above feed cost per cow than Sart sorghum yielding 19.1 tons at a cost of $3.33 per ton of stored silage.

In 1955-56, corn produced 14.5 tons of silage per acre at a cost of $3.46 per ton. Tracy sorghum yielded 20 tons at $2.68 per ton and Sart gave 19.2 tons at $2.76 per ton. When the total feed cost was deducted from the Class I value of the milk produced, corn silage returned more income per cow per day than Tracy or Sart by seven and ten cents, respectively. With milk valued at manufacturing prices, these returns would have been three and four cents, respectively. This does not account for the difference in change in body weight which favors corn silage, since the losses of body weight, which occurred on the sorghum silage, will be reflected in less persistency of milk production.

Happy Swap

More and more farmers—who badly need hired help sometimes, but can't afford a full-time hand—are making deals with young town workers and the employers they work for.

For instance, young Hap Hooper now lives rent-free on Easy Roberts' farm. In return he works about 100 days a year for Easy—for a farmhand's pay.

The rest of the year Hap works for his "regular" boss . . . Buzz Ellis, the electrician. Buzz just speeds up his business when Hap's on hand—slows it down when he isn't—and, like Easy, pockets healthy savings in wages.

From where I sit, it's great how people with different backgrounds—and different viewpoints—can co-operate. How about more of us trying that? I live in a town—maybe you're a farmer. I'm partial to a good glass of beer—you may prefer coffee or milk. But we can make things pleasanter by ignoring differences and giving each other a "hand."

Hello Readers!

Thursday and Friday are holidays for us, as the County Teachers Association meeting is being held.

Mr. H. H. Hatchett, Assistant State Supervisor of Music, will spend three days in our county this week—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. He will also be in attendance at the first day's meeting of the County Teacher's Association.

Next week ends our first six weeks' work. We are expecting good grades on our exams, and work thus far has been most interesting.

4-H Club meeting was held Monday, October 8, in the auditorium. Project work was discussed, the Hog Sale and show to be held in Lynchburg on October 20, and benefits of work done by various 4-H members. County Agent G. L. James was in charge.

The Senior Class met on Tuesday, October 9, with President Laura Fleshman presiding. Three one-act plays, to be presented during the first semester, were discussed, the circulation of three newspapers now being carried as a class project, and dues. Selection of class rings will be made October 15, when Mr. C. Smith, of Balfour Company will be present.

In the Girls' Physical Education classes, Speedball and Field Ball are now being played and enjoyed.

The Boys' P. E. classes, under Mr. Carrington Thomas, are drilling on football rules and plays, and we hope these students will be the future stars of our football team.

Carver Chapter of N. F. A. won second prize on their farm shop exhibit at the five county fair. The award was $8.00. The exhibit was arranged by Alfred Thornton and Walter Jones. The articles were made by the 11th and 12th grade boys.

On October 17, the N. F. A. boys will take part in the forestry judging contest of the Western Federation Activities at Charlottesville, Va.

The Student Council, in its meeting on Monday, October 8, decided that the guest speaker for its Installation Service will be from the Dunbar High School. The project of the Council now is collecting the names of all students who wish to correspond with a person of another country.

Until next week, our thought: "God hides some ideal in every human soul. At some time in our life we feel a trembling, fearful longing to do some good thing. Life finds its noblest spring of excellence in this hidden impulse to do our best."

Changes in Marketing

When the grocery bill seems high, it might help to consider that about a third of the items in the basket scarcely existed 20 years ago. Another third comes in an entirely different form. Instant pastry mixes and desserts, frozen juice concentrates, frozen fruits and vegetables, and prepared meals and dinners are new and different. Fresh foods, which used to be available only "in season," now are available all year.

Rats Cause Fires

Insurance companies estimate 25 per cent of fires of undetermined origin in the United States are caused by rats. They cause short circuits, ignite matches, and upset lamps.

FIRST FOR EACH

Phoenix, Ariz.- A woman motorist, stopped by a patrolman for going through a red light, complained. "This is the first ticket for me in all my years of driving." The cop, Andrew J. Best, admitted that hers was his first ticket — he had started working as a patrolman only an hour before.

STRANDED ATOP FIRE WHEEL

Pomona, Calif.- Twenty passengers aboard a ferris wheel in the Los Angeles county fair more than their money's worth when the center axle of the wheel snapped and left them stranded in their lofty seats nearly three hours. Firemen, using ladders, were able to remove passengers in the lower seats; those higher up had to be reached with longer ladders.

Jaycees Met Monday Night

The regular meeting of the Appomattox County Junior Chamber of Commerce was held at the Appomattox Garment Company cafeteria Monday night. After the order of business, Mrs. Joan Smith, Coordinator of the DE and DO at the local high school, presented an interesting program dealing with the activities of her group. She pointed out that the relationship between the employer and student under this program leads to a thorough understanding of the problems faced by both and gives them a chance to work them out before the student is ready for full time employment.

Visitors from the Lynchburg Chapter included Earl Campbell, National Director, and Fred Cawthorne. Earl reported on the progress of the State Headquarters Building in Lynchburg, and described some of the projects being undertaken by other chapters in the state.

Mass Meeting At Farmville

There will be a mass meeting on Tuesday, October 23, at 8 P. M., at Jarman Auditorium in Farmville. Hon. J. Segar Gravett, of Blackstone will speak on "Segregation and Constitutional Government as They Relate to the States Rights Party of Virginia." The meeting is sponsored by the Prince Edward County States Rights Committee. All local citizens are invited to attend.

A crowd that filled the local court house to standing room capacity, and overflowed into the courtyard, attended a Democratic party rally here last Saturday evening.

Representative Watkins M. Abbitt presided. He set the pattern of the rally by calling for full support of the Democratic candidates in the November 6 Presidential election. Reserving areas of disagreement with some portions of the national party platform, Mr. Abbitt stated that Virginia and the South would be better maintained in its way of life, government, self-respect and individual freedom under a Democratic Administration than under a Republican Administration.

Mr. Abbitt further stated that "In my opinion, if the Republican Party goes back into power, we will have the so-called Civil Rights program enacted into law before July 1957. . . . We will be in a political straight jacket. The only hope for us is under a Democratic Administration."

State Senator Chas T. Moses, in introducing the visiting speaker for the evening, stated that the campaign of 1956 is a three-pronged deal, referring, of course, to the States Rights Party, the Republican party and the Democratic Party. Mr. Moses said that "Our President is a wonderful man, but he is being used by big money, big industry and big manufacturers. They have not helped the farmer. What they have done is pulled him down."

The Appomattox legislator said that everyone has a right to vote as he pleases, but "I'm going to vote Democratic."

Hon. W. Griffith Purcell, the Vice-Chairman of the State Democratic Campaign Committee and the State President of the Young Democratic Clubs of Virginia, was the principal speaker.

The text of his address:

"First, permit me to thank Senator Moses for his most kind and more than generous introduction. You know, Charlie Moses was a man four years ahead of his time—a man who has so ably represented those who till the soil, turn the furrows and break the clods.

"It is with a feeling of reverence and pride that it becomes my privilege tonight, to visit this sacred shrine of the Confederacy and speak with the sons and daughters of Appomattox. Words are inadequate to describe to you my appreciation for the great privilege you have extended me to speak with you regarding the Party of our fathers, the Great Democratic Party. And it is altogether fitting and proper that we gather here tonight at the last bivouac of the Confederacy in order to attune our sympathetic and understanding ear to the thundering silence of the glorious dead who here lie buried beneath the sacred soil of this hallowed ground, in order to recognize their past sacrifices for the Democratic Cause and the preservation of States Rights -- which you, too, evidence by your presence here tonight, and is further evidenced by the sacrifices you have made, are making and will continue to make for the Democratic Party of your fathers.

"You of Appomattox, worthy and respected sons and daughters of Mother Virginia, born, reared, and nurtured in the traditions of Jefferson, Jackson, Lee and Woodrow Wilson — you who have your family roots deeply embedded in the Democratic soil of this grand old Commonwealth have fought the good fight and have kept faith with your heritage, the Democratic Party — which from time immemorial — yea, from such time that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, has guided our political destiny. It is needless for me to attempt to relate the record of achievement and accomplishment made by the Democratic Party. Such record has been carved, not in sand, nor even in stone, but in the hearts of all Virginians, and will so continue forever and a day, in the hearts of Virginia generations yet unborn.

"A few years ago, in speaking of the Democratic Party, some few differentiated between the State Democratic Party and the National Democratic Party. Now those days have passed, and today we speak of the Great Democratic Party as one indivisible party with no geographical limitations or artificial boundaries. Today we do not have a party

Who Removed The Post Office Pens.

Recently, as part of a program of service to the public, post offices installed fine ball-point pens on the writing counters in post office lobbies. The dark green pens were attached to the counters by chains to prevent removal. In Appomattox last week-end some culprit showed utter disregard of public property and a possible $500 federal fine, by forcibly removing both the ball-point points. The pens are easily identifiable, and the post office people would be happy to find their current whereabouts.

Now is Time to Begin Polio Shots, Advises Health Officer

The inclination to forget about polio as the danger season of the summer passes led Dr. H. E. Jenkins, Health Director of Appomattox County, to point out that even if the series is started now, as it should be, the three-time visit for Salk vaccine shots requires at least eight months.

The second shot is given four to six weeks after the first and the third should be given about seven months after the second. Thus, started now, the series would be finished when the heaviest polio period starts next July.

The Health Director expressed concern over the limited use of the vaccine in Appomattox County, and reminded that those in the age bracket from less than a year through 19, may obtain the series through public clinics conducted regularly at the Health Office. There is no cost at these clinics for the 0-19 aged group.

Clinics are held at the Health Office, Appomattox, on the second and fourth Tuesdays, at 10 A. M.

Ample supplies of the vaccine are also in the hands of private physicians, who may administer the vaccine to persons of all ages.

"The federal grant which provides the vaccine free at public clinics will end July 1, 1957. We have no way of knowing whether or not another appropriation will be made then, but it certainly seems sensible to avail ourselves of the vaccine while the present supply is obtainable under the current grant," he said.

The 35 to 50 per cent acceptance of the vaccine concerns public health officials, particularly when the reports of protection against paralytic forms of polio are coming in so strongly from across the country. Evidence is "almost conclusive" that the vaccine stands between the individual and the ravages of polio of the paralyzing variety, according to the Health Director's information.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors and Advisors of the Christian Memorial Fund, it was recommended that a meeting be called of all those who contributed to the fund and all other interested persons. This meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 7, 1956, at 7:30 P. M. The meeting will be held in the Court House at Appomattox.

The purpose of the meeting is to consider ways and means of managing the funds now on hand and other funds that may be contributed.

The following proposals are recommended:

First: That the Christian Memorial Funds be used for the education of the children of the late David A. Christian, III.

Second: Should the Christian Memorial Fund for some reason not be used for the education of the children of David A. Christian, III, then it is recommended that the fund be made available as a loan fund to medical, dental, or nursing students who are citizens of Appomattox County or adjoining counties.

Third: That the funds now on hand or that are later contributed be invested at the direction of the Board of Directors in order that the funds might produce an income until such time that they are used as set forth in the first and second recommendations.

All interested persons are urged to attend and bring their friends to this call meeting on Nov. 7, 1956, at 7:30 P. M., in Appomattox Court House.
